Gullett Places Freeze On Greenbriar Plans

by Elaine Skolnik

The News Review learned on Monday that the county executive William Gullett, had "frozen" the building permit for the construction of the 1193-unit Greenbriar Apartment development in Greenbelt. Issuance of the permit by the Department of Licenses and Permits had been expected last week.

Jay Morris of the county executive's office said: "We have to satisfy ourselves completely that all requirements have been met." In particular, guarantees were wanted that (1) the pumping station serving the Greenbriar development would be constructed at the time the apartments were ready for occupancy so that, in the event of any unanticipated plant malfunction, the effluent from the Greenbriar temporary sewage treatment plant could be discharged directly into the public sewer system; and that (2) the funds for the construction of the pumping station are included in the current county's capital improvement program.

BULLETIN

Late yesterday afternoon word was received that the Board of Licenses and Permits released the building permit for the Greenbriar project.

WSSC Review

According to Steve Kanofsky of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission (WSSC), the staff is currently reviewing a plan submitted by Greenbriar consultant Ben Dyer and Associates for a temporary package pumping station which, in the event of a sewage emergency, would pump the effluent to nearby public sewer lines leading to the Western Branch. The temporary plant would be operated until the permanent plant is completed.

WSSC has completed a preliminary review of the treatment plant and recommended certain changes with which the Greenbriar developer Alan Kay said he would comply. Kanofsky said, "We want to make certain that the plan conforms with the requirements of the Ten Year Water and Sewer Plan." Regarding the inclusion of the permanent pumping station in the capital improvement program, WSSC said that the facility was included in the program. The developer will pay a major cost of the permanent facility as well as the total construction and operation costs of the temporary plants.

Still Concerned

County Health Officer Perry Stearns noted that, while it appeared to him that all the legal requirements had been satisfied as far as his department was concerned, he still maintained that the stream on parcel 1 in Greenbelt north of Sanitary Fill Road (Northway extended) "was not adequate to accept the sewage effluent from the treatment plant." He preferred that the effluent be enclosed in a pipe because the stream flow was "minimal."

The State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene apparently does not agree with Dr. Stearns and gave the developer approval for the sewage effluent to be piped only from the plant on the Greenbriar tract to a "free flowing" unnamed tributary of Beaver Dam Creek on NASA property. Recently, representatives of the various agencies examined the stream which runs under the Baltimore Washington Parkway into the stream on parcel 1. Dr. Stearns felt that the evaluation should have been made in the summer during the dry season.

Council Plans Ahead For Land Acquisition; Pool Fees Held Firm

Taking the long view, city council at its March 19 meeting authorized the city manager to plan a land acquisition program that will include parts of the Smith-Ewing property, parts of parcel 1, and part of parcel 15. The first step will be to explore the extent to which funds may be available from the State of Maryland for parkland acquisition, so that the council can determine how much additional funds may be needed from the city's own resources, such as revenue-sharing funds and past or future bond issues.

The manager was directed to prepare grant applications for the following: (1) Smith-Ewing property adjacent to F. D. Roosevelt senior high school. 31.3832 acres are involved of which about 25% is already pledged through agreement with the Greenbriar developer and a mandatory dedication understanding with MNCPPC.

(2) 75 acres of parcel 1 (the land between the GHI properties and the Baltimore-Washington Parkway), to include a stream valley.

(3) Approximately 19 acres of parcel 15 — land owned by Reiner, Lerner, and Ammerman, trustees — located adjacent to Greenbelt Lake between Charlestown North and the Capital Beltway.

Swimming Pool Fees

The Greenbelt city council has tentatively decided not to raise the swimming pool fees for residents this year. The family admission pass rate will remain at $35 and the daily admission rate will still be $1 for adults and 50c for children. However, the council agreed to increase the family admission rate for non-residents from $75 to $80. The daily admission rates for non-residents will stay the same ($1.50 for adults, $1 for children).

The council also decided to increase the charge for swimming instructions. Each Greenbelt child will pay $4 this year instead of $3 for the basic six-hour swimming course. A maximum of $7 (previously $5) will be charged for a family with two or more children.

Greenbelt citizens will have a chance to comment on the changes at the next council meeting when the resolution comes up for final passage.

Council Appointments

Council appointed Gregory Fazarley, 9123 Springhill Lane, and Leon Raesley, 6006 Springhill Drive, to two vacancies on the Park and Recreation Advisory Board. Fazarley's term will run to May 1973 and Raesley's to May 1974.

Nino Moretti, 121 Rosewood Drive, was appointed to the Advisory Planning Board for a term to expire in October 1973.

Other Matters

Council approved the expenditure of $7,000 from unappropriated surplus to meet current bills incurred in connection with the renovation of the Greenbelt commercial center mall. This is a temporary financing arrangement since it is anticipated that the cost of the renovation will be financed through bonds to be repaid by a tax levy against the property within a special taxing district at the commercial center.

Referred to the Park and Recreation Advisory Board was a request by the Greenbelt Aquatic Boosters' Club for the installation of a turning wall at the swimming pool.

Change in Meeting Dates

Council has moved back its regular meetings for April to April 9 and 23. The meeting to consider a day care center for Greenbelt, previously set for April 9, was re-set for April 2.

Debate Over Land Clearance Methods Delays Council Action

by Al Skolnik

The city council had another go-around with the open pit burning controversy at its Monday, March 19 meeting, only to delay a final decision until it could gather more information on a combined chipper-scissor operation and an evaluation of the various arguments put forth.

At issue was an amendment to the city's anti-burning ordinance which would permit burning of trees, branches, and limbs six inches or more in diameter, provided that the method of burning is approved by the State and county and that the density of smoke does not exceed 1 on the Ringlemann chart. (The Ringlemann chart grades the various densities of smoke. The higher the number, the more dense the smoke. No. 1 on the scale is barely visible emission.) Trees and shrubbery less than six inches in diameter would be disposed of by chipping. Open pit burning, also known as trench burning or the air curtain destructor (ACD) method, would be permitted under the amendment.

Triggering the issue is the need for clearing the Smith-Ewing tract east of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway for the Greenbriar apartment complex and the Franklin D. Roosevelt senior high school. Favoring the ACD method were the Greenbriar developers, Alan Kay and associates, and the Glassman Construction Company who have the contract for constructing the high school. Both argue that ACD is much cheaper than any other method of clearing the land. Opposing the ACD was, among others, the Greenbelt Environmental Action Committee (GEAC) who feared the effect on the city's environment.

The ACD method utilizes a deep trench into which air is blown across the entire length. The angle of the air induction is such that it results in almost complete combustion. The emission is therefore, relatively smoke free. It is thus considered far superior to conventional burning.

Economics of the Situation

Kay said that the ACD method would cost about $1,100 an acre to clear the land and had the ACD contractor present to verify the figure. The alternative commonly proposed — that of chipping, he said, was not anywhere near this figure. If it were, he assured the council, he would use chipping, as he is anxious to accommodate as many Greenbelters as possible.

Herman Ammon, representing GEAC, asked that council investigate another method of clearing land, known as the combined chipper-scissor approach. He said that the firm developing this method would clear the land for $2,000 to $2,500 per acre.

This method, he said, would have the advantage of preventing the pollution of vital air resources, would reduce the trees to easily disposable sawdust, and would obviate the need for transporting many of the stumps to far-away land fills.

Earlier Kay had said that such debris as stumps cannot be chipped and must be trucked away to rubble fills. He estimated that to clear 50 acres of the Greenbriar site using the chipping method would require the removal of 3,750 truckloads of stumps. These trucks, he continued, would have to travel 26.9 miles each way to the nearest rubble fill for a total of 300,000 miles. This would require the consumption of 4,000 gallons of diesel fuel. Maynard Greenblat of the Glassman Construction Co. agreed with these figures and asked the audience to think of all the air pollution that would be created by truck exhausts as well as traffic congestion. "These are known pollutants," he said. Also mentioned was the noise pollution created by the chipping machines.

Pollution Effects

Council members Elizabeth Mafay and Rhea Cohen expressed concern that no one had any information on the exact amount of pollutants emitted into the atmosphere by the ACD or the long-range effects of ACD on the environment. Mrs. Cohen called the ACD a new experimental method.

Kay and Greenblat denied that the method was experimental. It has been used hundreds of times, they said, and it is approved by such governmental agencies as the U. S. Government, Prince Georges county (outside the Beltway), the State, as well as other jurisdictions all over the country. They also minimized the effects of the ACD on air pollution by noting that there is no habitation near the Smith-Ewing site.

Waste of Wood

Opponents of the ACD stressed the waste of raw material that occurs in burning. Ammon said that loggers would be interested in buying, cutting, and hauling away the larger marketable timber from the site, leaving the developer a direct profit.

Kay replied that he has been in contact with numerous loggers and none were interested. Furthermore, he said, loggers would of necessity be selective in their choice of trees, which means that he would still be left with clearing away the unwanted trees.

Another argument against the ACD was that it would require constant city manpower to supervise the operation to make sure that the trench was not overloaded and was not a safety hazard. Kay offered to pay the salary of any city employee who was assigned to such a job and to put up a performance bond. He also produced correspondence from the county bureau of environmental health testifying as to the credentials of the company that Kay said would be engaged in the ACD operation.

Glen Ora Tract

In a related matter, council referred the request of Kay regarding the development of the Glen Ora tract for condominium townhouses to the Advisory Planning Board.

REMINDER TO GHI MEMBERS

A copy of the Board's position on the CMP recommendations concerning the organizational structure of GHI, advising you of two scheduled hearings on the subject, was mailed to you last week.

This is to remind you that the first of these two hearings is next Tuesday, March 27 at the North End Elementary School; with the second one on Thursday, March 29 at the City Council Chambers. Both hearings will commence at 8 p.m.

Please attend and express your views.

Invitation to Model Building
To the Editor:

Yes - I do other things besides rightfully or wrongfully take pen in hand and write letters to the editor! And one of my present activities is teaching a class of pre-teen boys how to build models at the Ridge Road Center between 4 and 6 p.m. on Thursdays.

The Recreation Department has furnished some of the basic tools that are used in model building but the boy is requested to furnish the models he desires to build along with the paint and adhesives that he will use to construct and paint the model. At the present time, 8 lively boys are having a ball on Thursday afternoons!

The models are worked on for a while; and when the gang gets a bit tired and needs a break, impromptu games are played; and then it's back to the models for a while! And then, "It's that time again!"

At the present time, the model building consists of putting plastic kits together. For the newcomer to the sport of model building, the kits that snap together without having to use an adhesive are recommended and can be obtained at the hobby shop in the Beltway Plaza.

Those that have had a bit of experience - but are yet a bit unskilled - are urged to get the simple models that are put together with adhesives. And, if the boy is really skilled, there are no limitations put on the type of model he may select.

Any boy who is interested in building models is invited to drop in and see what's going on . . .

A Waste of Tax Money

To the Editor:

Ed Thornhill's letter in the March 15 issue of the News Review points out to Greenbelt citizens an absurd waste of their tax dollars by a costly refurbishing of the Center Mall. A big savings might well be the architect's fee for, as his letter indicates, the renewal of curbs, grass plots and benches are maintenance items that could be done by the city's own staff.

Certainly, any improvement to the Mall can only benefit those property owners who have continuously resisted any financial participation in its renewal. These owners realize that their buildings have long since outlived their life expectancy and are now rapidly depreciating beyond any practical renovation. In fact, the whole Center has lost its potential as a modern commercial center because of its limited parking facilities and access roads.

I believe any money expended by the city on the Center Mall beyond repairs and renewal of the present facilities will be tax money poured down the drain, as it will not improve the taxing value of the present buildings.

Proposed Day Care Center
To the Editor:

A non-profit day care center has been proposed for Greenbelt by one of our city council members. It would occupy the Ridge Road Recreation Center, which is presently not occupied during the daytime. A special meeting of the city council will be held to discuss this Day Care Center, at 8 p.m., Monday, April 2. I urge everyone who is interested in quality, low-cost child care facilities in Greenbelt to attend this meeting and express your views of what will be needed and how we can operate this service.

It is possible that it will be operated by the city similarly to the swimming pool, with perhaps some help from a Federal grant. However, it will not get past the planning stage without the expressed interest and support of local residents. Because it will pay its own way, it should not raise taxes.

Persons who are now baby-sitting in their own homes may wish to be employed by the day care center. Working mothers (and fathers) will be assured that their children are having the best of care and perhaps preschool education, at the lowest possible cost, since it will be run on a non-profit basis. The children will benefit from activities with others of their own age.

We need information about financing and staffing, as well as operating the day care center. Persons with information or experience with day care (pros and cons) should attend the meeting. If impossible to attend, send your ideas to me, c/o P. O. Box 103, Greenbelt. This day care center will reflect what you want.

To the Editor:

Many people have been trying to aggravate people and parents in particular. One classic example is the following.

In Greenbelt Junior High School we have a rotating shop program, that is to say that every nine weeks we change our shop class and go on to the next shop class.

Since busing the administration has stopped this rotating of shop classes.

In my opinion this was done to aggravate the parents. There is no apparent reason for stopping the rotation of shop classes other than that reason. The shop teachers claim they tried to change this situation, but haven't done so yet. As for the Student Council the motion has not as yet been brought to the floor.

The PTSA had a form passed out to the student members to put complaints on but the situation was not brought up.

Vladimir Chavrid

Vladimir D. (Bill) Chavrid, former resident of 1 Court Northway, died at his College Park home Sunday after a heart attack. Chavrid, age 61, had retired last June as an official in the Labor Department's U. S. Employment Service.

He leaves his wife, Catherine; a son, Alexander V. of 30-A Ridge; a daughter, Janet, of Laurel; a brother, a sister and two grandchildren.

Born in Minsk, Russia, Chavrid came to the United States at the age of 15. He began his Federal government career in 1941 with the Social Security Board.

In 1959 and 1961 he returned to the Soviet Union as a government representative at two U. S. International Trade Fairs, an assignment that earned him several awards.

In 1970 and 1971 he represented the Labor Department in Vietnam on a special assignment involving educational and job training needs there.

Recently he was honored by the Labor Department with a Distinguished Career Service Award in recognition of his many contributions to the department's manpower and employment service programs.

women's Olympic events—the balance beam, vaulting, free exercise, and uneven bars. The All-Around is the combination score of these four events and is the highest award given a gymnast. Gidget Hammond, also of Greenbelt, received second in the All-Around in her age group competition.

Photographer's Mate Second Class Robert A. Nicholson of Greenbelt, has reenlisted in the Naval Air Reserve Unit. His full-time job is as an officer with the District of Columbia Police Department.

Condolences to Mrs. Barbara Chambers 9-A Parkway, on the death of her husband, George.

Our deepest sympathy to Alex Chavrid 30 Ridge, on the death of his father.

Congratulations to Allen Clute and Joel Kastner, who placed sixth and fifth overall respectively in the Mary Bethune Science Fair. Joel placed first in Space and Environmental Science, while Allen was first in Engineering.

Mr. and Mrs. Kamlesh C. Shah, 6142 Springhill Terrace, are the proud parents of a son, Sujal, who was born on January 31, weighing 8 lbs., 4 1/2 ozs. Sujal joins a sister, Sabane, 2.

It's great to see Tillie Wetter, 9-J Ridge, back in town again, after a trip to Hawaii and California. While in Los Angeles, Mrs. Wetter experienced an earthquake.

Rita Polaschik and Mike Groves were among the student delegates from Parkdale High School who, along with delegates from other county high schools, represented Prince Georges County at the 49th Annual Columbia Scholastic Press Convention on the campus of Columbia University, New York, on March 15-17.

Gail Sarni and Joe Scallion, Parkdale students, had their drawings included in the January issue of Thought Waves, a bi-monthly publication of the Young Adult Services Division of the Prince Georges County Library.

Greenbelter Beth Wilkinson directed the play that Parkdale high school presented at the state play festival in Frederick, Md., on March 16. Although no prizes were given for festival presentations, Parkdale did receive a regional award. Greenbelters in the play were: Kathy Geiger, Sarah Hanna, Mary McGee and Andy Kliman.

Congratulations to S. Lance Williams, 5912 Cherrywood Lane who won first place in the amateur division of the Indoor Archery Championship for Maryland. Lance will compete in the United States Indoor Archery Championship on April 7 in Harrisburg, Pa.
